

Indigo Children

There are some things mentioned within this article that may not make sense to you unless you have integrated the information within Book 2.

Most people who follow new age thinking are aware of the term "indigo children". Did you ever question where the term originated? The following, from wikipedia, offers us great insight to the origin of the term.

*The term "indigo children" originated with parapsychologist and self-described synesthete and psychic Nancy Ann Tappe, who developed the concept in the 1970s. Tappe published the book Understanding Your Life Through Color in 1982 describing the concept, stating that during the mid-1960s she began noticing that many children were being born with "indigo" auras (in other publications Tappe said the color indigo came from the "life colors" of the children which she acquired through her synesthesia). The idea was later popularized by the 1998 book The Indigo Children: The New Kids Have Arrived, written by husband and wife self-help lecturers Lee Carroll and Jan Tober. In 2002, an international conference on indigo children was held in Hawaii, drawing 600 attendees, with subsequent conferences the following years in Florida and Oregon. Several films have also been produced on the subject, including two English feature films in 2003 and 2005, and a documentary in 2005 (both the latter were directed by James Twyman, a New Age writer).*

It is amazing how one person can start a thought wave that people will continue to build upon and change based on their own experiences. What if Tappe had never started the thought, would it have been created anyway and evolved through the new age movement? Most likely, as someone else would have picked up on the thought eventually.

Unfortunately, the many thoughts, from now many people, surrounding the concept of indigo children has evolved to create separation within human consciousness. Humans do have a way of separating, labeling and classifying things that seem to be unusual from the accepted normal. As well, the movie industry is always quick to jump onto such new thoughts, because there is a "crowd" who is interested in them and crowds translate into money. The movie industry then brings the thoughts to life, upon the big screen, which works to make people accept new thoughts into their chosen belief system. It also paints images of preconceived thoughts which people accept, and then think that is how something must be. All a part of self discovery.

The most important thing to be aware of is that every single person is equal. All people are Source embodied. All humans are at different levels of healing, which simply means some humans can run a bit more energy than others. It does not mean anyone is more special than anyone else.

Consciousness who has forgotten the truth of self, and the truth of creation, eventually re-evolves and begins asking more questions. The questions are the precursor to the answers opening from within. However, the false beliefs that consciousness has previously accepted as truth can make the truth of the answers seem to be hidden. This is because the answers must fit into the chosen belief system or the brain will discard them as non-truth.

It is quite true that there are humans who have turned on a bit more energy abilities than others. This is simply a result of human consciousness being at different levels of healing. There are higher reasons why some humans are at a bit more higher level of energy that others might not yet have reached, but even those reason do not mean a few are more special in anyway.

There have been people who have held, what seem to others, as unusual energy abilities for thousands of years. There have also been many people who have claimed some type of higher abilities who have been frauds. People who do hold the ability to access a bit more energy generally do not speak about it. They do not know to speak about it, as they do not know it is not simply natural until someone tells them it is not, or they discover for themselves that not everyone experiences as they do.

If someone does hold an ability that seems to be unusual, or abnormal, and others discover they do, they are quickly cast aside as being "different". In an imbalanced world where everyone is trying to fit in, being labeled as different can create inner emotional turmoil. Once case in history is the witch hunts, resulting from ignorance within cultural beliefs. It may surprise you to know that some cultures still create outcasts for children and people whom they believe to be witches. Or, at least who they claim to be so which makes it socially acceptable to push the child or person out of the tribe.

Superstitious beliefs are the reasons we do not see more people coming forward and speaking about what they know. Very few people desire to become outcasts, science experiments or put upon a pedestal.

The new age movement has allowed a door to be opened that has made it possible for such people to be more readily accepted within some cultures. It is the fragmentation of human consciousness that can quickly allow people to push things away from their self they cannot yet understand. And, the root of doing so is fear.

Tappe began the thought of indigo children based upon her reports of what she says she was seeing within the "auric fields" of some children. Her thoughts include looking at creation through color. Personally, I love that thought as I am a color oriented expression. However, we must remember what color is and how it is created.

Color is created in the brain of each person and no two people see color exactly the same. The colors that humans can see is based entirely on the operation of the human body, and the way the individual human body translates energy to the awareness of the individual, embodied face of Source. The energy that "human vision" can translate through the brain is a very tiny amount of energy, which we call the visible spectrum. This means the color humans can see lies within that very tiny amount of energy.

That very tiny amount of energy is the energy humans see as the manifest holographic reality field, we call earth. Everything that humans cannot see as manifest is energy that the human body is not made of. We call this energy "empty space". We also call this energy the layers of the atmosphere, and outer space, as well as air.

People who can see things that exist outside of the human body visible spectrum are able to run a bit higher amounts of energy through their human body and this is a result of what science calls "genetic mutations". What science calls genetic mutations are not mutations as the thoughts the general public hold from science fiction movies. They are "changes" that have occurred within the chemical DNA of the human form, which is a thought form. It is common today to hear science blame anything, and everything, that they decree to be "abnormal", to be a result of genetic mutation.

This belief stems from the belief that illness and disease are something that should not occur within the human body, as well as the evolution of the human body. It is based solely on the fact that science, and the largest percentage of humanity, can only see the energy we call manifest.

Science is trying to create a "perfect human body". The challenge with that thought is science has no clue, or no original blueprint, of what a perfect human body might be. They have nothing to base anything on to then decree that anything is a genetic mutation. They are simply going on the self created belief of what "their concept" of the perfect human body should be.

The human body thought form is perfect. It was created to be perfect. There is nothing wrong with the human body. It is operating exactly as it was created to operate. The issues that arise within the operation of the human body are the result of the imbalanced thought experiences that humanity have continued to experience. These imbalanced experiences are imbalanced thoughts, which create imbalanced emotions. The imbalanced thoughts and emotions of each person are coded within the chemical DNA of each person. They are then passed on to each next generation. As well, the female retains the DNA of every person she has sex with, which is then passed on to any baby body she births after the point of gaining the DNA of another person. The inherited DNA will lie in a dormant state, within the baby body, until something turns it on.

However, that is not the only chemical way the imbalance of humanity is passed within the human race. Water holds memory. This has been scientifically proven. All of the things we experience as solid matter first express as water. Water is the first phase of energy taking on the form of solid matter. As well, there are other states of water that humans are not aware of, but we are aware that the largest percentage of what we are experiencing as manifest matter is water.

We do not think of the air we breathe as being a state of water simply because of the way science has classified energy into groups. However, if you have ever experienced high levels of humidity, it is quite easy to understand the concept of wringing water from the air.

Therefore, we are all held within a sphere of energy that is filled with water, expressing in different states of energy. Actually, we are held within a sphere of energy period, which is radiation, but for now, we will stick with the concept of water. We are looking at this from the level we call chemicals.

Since water holds memory, it means that every thought and emotion you have is breathed in and out of your body, into the sea of water the body is held within. We know that liquid water enters and leaves our body constantly. Where does all of that water go? We flush it away from our self, never to think of it again. Do you know that the water that exists on earth is the "same water" that has always existed on earth? The water does not go anywhere, it simply continues to circulate through the earth system.

This means every thought, every emotion that has been experienced by every human that has ever walked this earth is coded within the water. There it will remain, until it is released back into our Sun Source mind. Every thought we have is coded with the emotions we experienced. We then release all of those emotionally charged thoughts unto the sea of energy our body is currently held within. With every breath you take, you are drawing the spheres of thoughts into your body. You are also doing so with everything you smell, drink, eat and think.

As we know, all biological forms of earth are mostly water. That means that the thoughts of humanity are held within everything we are experiencing as manifest matter. It means that we cannot be embodied within this earth system without taking the thoughts of humanity into our body. Doing so is what turns on the inherited genetic code, that lies dormant until it is turned on.

The illness and diseases that afflict the human body are passed on via the conscious thoughts and emotions of humanity. If the human body was held within a sphere of energy that was not filled with the imbalanced thoughts of humanity, it would not become ill or diseased. Therefore, all illness and diseases are "human made".

Being aware of these truths, and looking at the imbalanced thoughts of humanity, should allow it to become easy to understand why manipulating the DNA of the human body cannot create the "perfect human body thought form". Healing into balance is not a process of healing the human body. The human body is working exactly as it was designed to work. What needs held are the imbalanced thoughts and emotions of humanity. The ONLY thing that can heal such is Love. Love IS the higher energy of Source and it is the only thing that can heal human consciousness.

What does all of this have to do with the concept of indigo children? More energy being turned on within the flows of energy of the auric body is the result of Source mind continuing to send into the earth system more of the higher energy of Source mind. The process had occurred very slowly, in the past 26,000 years, as the collective of human consciousness cannot support the higher energy of Source until they expand to be able to.

The only way for consciousness to birth into a human body is via biological parents merging their energy to co-create a human baby body. This is because the spark of Source that enters the human body can only enter as a spark, least it blow up the human baby body, or send to much energy into the collective consciousness at once, which would blow up the collective consciousness.

The higher energy of Source continuing to birth into the human collective consciousness, is the process of faces of Source, that had already healed back into balance, projecting a ray of their conscious energy back into the earth system. The projected ray is the spark that enters the human body, at the birth moment of the human body. If it did so before the baby body was separated from the mother's body, it would be too much of a spike of energy for the mother's body, forcing her body into the death cycle. That is why new born babies do not instantly cry or breathe, upon birthing. The breathing process begins as soon as the embodying consciousness enters into the body.

The consciousness that embodies into the baby human body can only do so if the baby body is of the same vibration rate of the embodying spark of consciousness. If something occurs within the baby body to drop the vibration rate, the birthing process will have to be aborted and the embodying consciousness will try again at a later time.

This is why each person that births into this earth hologram specifically "chooses" who the biological parents will be. The combined energy of the biological parents must be able to co-create a body form that will support the energy of the embodying consciousness. However, that is not all that must match.

The baby human body must also hold the energy of the "original ray of consciousness" projected from the Sun Source mind, before the point of the original fall, or original fragmentation, that occurred over 5 billion years ago, of earth time. This is necessary because each individual expression of Source is an individual expression of Source because each ray of consciousness projected from the Sun Source mind, into the solar plane, holds its unique amount of Source energy.

The earth system is a "healing system" to allow the consciousness that fragmented over 5 billion years ago to heal and merge back into the original divine expression.

This means that each baby an individual gives birth to is the consciousness from the original family line of consciousness, of the original ray of consciousness, projected from the Sun Source mind. Doing so through a biological form, which we call the human body, is the process of merging the original fragmented consciousness back into the "one" original expression. That is what combining chemical DNA allows for.

As more of the higher energy of the "personal family line of consciousness" has birthed into the human consciousness who became trapped, following the fall in energy, due to the relapse in healing, that occurred over 26,000 years ago, the human body form has continued to change, from the way it looked at that time.

That is why what was once only brown eyed humans, now expresses with many different shades of eye color. It is also what has created many different shades of color of human skin and all differences we see expressing in what we call "races".

These many body changes have occurred as the earth drama has unfolded, which includes earth changes, created by human emotions and thoughts, which have forced humans to migrate around the planet. This too is a process of spreading human DNA around the planet. All of such things is why today, the higher consciousness of Source is now held within all of ascending humanity. The select few, who continue to control the earth paradigm, believed the thoughts of their fallen family members, that they must keep their genetic code pure, and only pro-create among themselves. It is why they have not be able to receive the higher energy of Source embodying within the earth system.

The healing mission has always, and continues to be, about raising the vibration rate of human consciousness back up to a high enough vibration rate to be able to merge back into the original projected ray of consciousness, and then back into the Sun Source mind. That is what the human body was created to allow for and it is working just fine.

Within the color spectrum humans can "see", and using that color spectrum to assign higher to lower levels of energy, higher = colors of the purple, or violet spectrum, followed by the blue spectrum, followed by the green spectrum, followed by the red spectrum. Your favorite color is a key to the spectrum of energy you are currently working to embody.

Therefore, seeing more blue turn on within the auric fields of children, is the process of the embodied consciousness turning on more "sub-harmonics" of energy associated with the "Over Soul" expression of the original planetary shield 3 family of consciousness, of the original ray of consciousness, projected from the Sun mind. Whew! That was a mouth full!

Prior to December 12, 2013, when the human body was able to be reconnected to mind, when the Eternal Life Grid came back online, this occurred via the "Life Line". Now that the vertical pillar is back online, embodying consciousness does not first have to step down to the inorganic sub-conscious mind to birth into the baby human body, they can do so directly from projecting a ray from the level of the healed family of consciousness. This is what is increasing the energy of the children who will continue to birth into this system.

As the energy of the biological parents continues to increase, they are then able to co-create a baby human body form that will house more of the energy of their personal family line of consciousness.

This is a lot to take in and consider and will most likely require you reading it many times, and thinking about it. Who are the indigo children? They are YOU!
